Wind industry professionals now have access to key news and analysis from the sector as windpowermonthly.com goes live.

LONDON – Users of windpowermonthly.com, the website for the leading wind industry title Windpower Monthly, will now find it easier than ever to keep ahead with daily updates, wind statistics and breaking news.

The website boasts a new design and structure and includes breaking news, all of the analysis and features from the magazine as well as over 15 years of archived Windpower Monthly articles.

A new weekly email bulletin allows wind professionals to get the latest industry updates direct to their inbox.

Ben Walker, editor of Windpower Monthly magazine, said: "Windpowermonthly.com features superior functionality, increased usability and a faster, more precise archive search. Windpowermonthly.com informs wind industry professionals with timely news and perceptive analysis of what really matters, using the knowledge accumulated over our 25 year history."

Since the redesigned website went live a month ago, traffic has already increased fourfold. It accompanies a redesign of the Windpower Monthly print magazine.
